FUTERRA

Futerra is the change agency, joining the magic of creative and the logic of strategy to make sustainability happen. Since 2001, we have pursued the mission of ‘making sustainable development so desirable it becomes normal’. That mission fills our team, and our work with purpose, pride and passion. Today, we’re a fiercely independent and global company: majority owned and led by women, and a founding B-Corp. Our team are based in London, Stockholm, New York and Mexico City and serve clients including Mars, Google, REI, Sierra Club and the United Nations.

WBCSD

The World Business Council for Sustainable Development (WBCSD) is a global, CEO-led organisation of 200 leading businesses, working together to accelerate the transition to a sustainable world. Our member companies come from all business sectors and all major economies, representing a combined revenue of more than USD $8.5 trillion and employing more than 19 million people around the world. In collaboration with our Global Network of over 60 national business councils, WBCSD is uniquely positioned to work with its member companies along and across value chains to deliver high-impact business solutions to the most challenging sustainability issues.

DOES YOUR BUSINESS HELP PEOPLE CHANGE THE WORLD FOR THE BETTER?

If you're reading this, then the chances are that your business has well-established CSR and sustainability initiatives. But if your customers and employees don't understand these and don't think you're helping them to live sustainably, then you're missing out on a huge opportunity.

Around the world, more and more people want to live in a healthier, smarter, cleaner way. That means there's a new conversation happening about what it means to live a good life and how business can help make better lifestyles possible.

In fact, in a 2018 Futerra survey of US and UK consumers, 88% of respondents said they want brands to help them make a difference. But 43% said companies were making it harder for them. So, if you're not clearly helping your customers to improve their environmental and social footprint, then you're in danger of disappointing of them.

Today, bold, brave and compelling campaigns abound across platforms, proving how aligned companies are with environmental and pro-social values. But just talking about corporate values isn't enough. Customers want business to help them live better and employees need to know that their actions are making a positive impact on the world.

HOW CAN THE GOOD LIFE GOALS HELP?

The Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) are a wonderfully comprehensive map of global sustainable development objectives, but they're not in themselves an action agenda for policymakers or for business, let alone for individuals.

Enter our 17 adorable emojis. The Good Life Goals are the personal actions that everyone, all around the world, can take to support the SDGs. They provide personally relevant links to each SDG, showing how we all, individually and collectively, can play an important role in how the future unfolds.

For business, the Good Life Goals provide a completely new way of thinking about the SDGs and sustainability. They make your sustainability actions relevant to customers' lives and allow your customers to take action themselves. They also help employees make sense of the work you're doing and give them a role to play in making it happen.

HOW CAN YOU USE THE GOOD LIFE GOALS?

Use the Good Life Goals as an engagement tool: with your employees, suppliers, and customers. They are designed for a general public audience, which means that anyone can understand them. And they're available in seven languages.

Use them to improve your day-to-day operations, design behaviour change into your products, and create new services for your customers. And use them to communicate messages that inspire your employees and customers to act and contribute to the SDGs.

As a business, you have huge potential to unleash positive impact. You have global reach. You can influence behaviours, aspirations and even the definition of success and happiness. That creative power is potent. Let's use it to inspire and enable people to support our collective sustainable development.

That's why Futerra and WBCSD developed this guide.
To help you explore all of the engagement possibilities that the Good Life Goals offer and the awesome actions that can stem from them.

THE GOOD LIFE GOALS

WHAT ARE THEY?

The Good Life Goals are the personal actions that everyone around the world can take to help support the Sustainable Development Goals. They are an effort to help global audiences recognise the vital role of individual action in achieving the SDGs. Each of the 17 Good Life Goals has five actions, and all the actions relate directly to the SDG targets.

WHY WERE THEY CREATED?

The SDGs have been crucial for governments and business to align on what needs to be achieved by 2030. But they leave out a role for the individual to get involved and also are not accessible to the general public.

The Good Life Goals link people's actions, activities and lifestyles to the SDG targets.

HOW ARE THEY RELEVANT TO BUSINESS?

The Good Life Goals can help business more effectively engage with people, both customers and employees, around the sustainable behaviours that are connected to their products, services and corporate culture. Leveraging their reach, business can help drive positive action in support of the SDGs.

HOW TO USE THE GOOD LIFE GOALS

ENGAGE CUSTOMERS

Use them to understand how your customers' lifestyles connect to the SDGs. This understanding can help you to more effectively engage customers around the behaviours that are linked to your products and services to drive positive SDG impact.

ENGAGE EMPLOYEES

Use them as a simple tool to engage employees across a wide range of internal activities, promoting enhanced awareness of the SDGs and a culture of behaviour that is more in line with your sustainability ambitions.

INNOVATE PRODUCTS AND SERVICES

Use them to develop new products and services that support more sustainable lifestyles. The Good Life Goals can help you identify innovation opportunities that will help people to live better.

HOW THE GOOD LIFE GOALS ARE ALREADY INSPIRING BUSINESS

HERE ARE TWO CASE STUDIES THAT SHOW HOW BUSINESSES ARE USING THEM TO ENGAGE CUSTOMERS AND EMPLOYEES

CASE STUDY 1

HOW CAN YOU INSPIRE THE NEXT GENERATION?

Danone

The Danone Nations Cup invites 2 million boys and girls aged 10-12 from 30 countries to come together in the world's biggest football tournament for children. Now running for its 20th year, Danone welcomes children to play football and change the game. It's a lifetime experience turning players into world citizens.

To take this a step further, in October 2019, the Danone Nations Cup will incorporate the Good Life Goals into the tournament. Seven hundred children will be able to enjoy playing football while learning more about sustainable development in a fun and accessible way. As part of this, Danone will ask children to vote for their favourite Good Life Goal. And to show children that their voices matter, Danone will set a commitment to one of the top-scoring Good Life Goal actions.

CASE STUDY 2

HOW CAN YOU CONNECT EMPLOYEES TO YOUR SUSTAINABILITY GOALS?

Genentech

Genentech is using the United Nations' 17 Sustainable Development Goals as a framework for its next set of public sustainability goals. While the SDGs provide an aspirational framework for governments and business, these large-scale goals and targets can leave individuals feeling like they don't know how to contribute.

So, to connect their employees to this work, Genentech employed the Good Life Goals.

During Earth Month in 2019, Genentech dedicated a day to each Good Life Goal with an activity, resource or presentation to educate the entire Genentech community. Some employees took part in a beach clean up for one of the days. Employees could also submit ideas during Earth Month for ways in which they could contribute to each Good Life Goal.

GOOD LIFE GOALS INSPIRATION

HERE ARE SEVERAL WAYS YOU COULD INCORPORATE THE GOOD LIFE GOALS IN COMMUNICATIONS TO CUSTOMERS AND EMPLOYEES

IN ACTION

Whether it's a city-wide sustainability campaign or an internal event to engage staff, use the Good Life Goals to make taking action on the SDGs more eye-catching and fun.

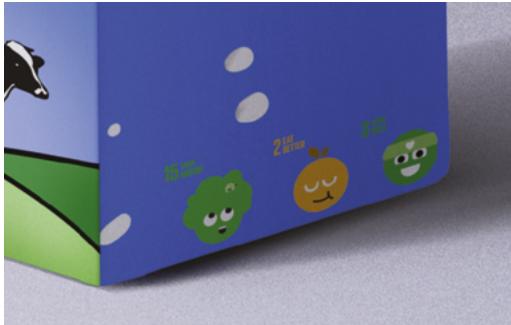

AT STAKEHOLDER EVENTS

Use the Good Life Goals in corporate packs and collateral for participants to bring the SDGs into your events (through the joy of emojis).

ON PRODUCT

Use the Good Life Goals on products or packaging to show your customers how you are helping them to live more sustainably.

WITH CHARITY PARTNERS

Work with your charity partners to align your philanthropic and volunteering efforts with the Good Life Goals.

IN SUSTAINABILITY REPORTS

Use the Good Life Goals as a framework to disclose your sustainability activities and progress.

ON SOCIAL MEDIA

Use the Good Life Goals to engage your audiences and connect them with more sustainable lifestyles.

EVENTS AND SPONSORSHIP

The Good Life Goals can be especially useful at events. They are bold, eye-catching and inspiring and can help bring a mass public audience to the sustainable development conversation.

THE SIMPLEST WAY TO START A GOOD LIFE GOALS HACK

Your agenda should cover these four components:

Get everyone inspired by the potential of the Good Life Goals as an effective behaviour change tool.

Questions to answer:

- Why are the Good Life Goals relevant to our business?
- What work are we already doing related to the SDGs?
- What are our business priority areas where the Good Life Goals could be helpful?

e.g. You might discuss the SDGs you're already working on or why your customers may be particularly interested in sustainable living.

Review the Good Life Goal actions and identify which are most relevant to your business.

Questions to answer:

- What behaviours do our products or services facilitate in our customers' lives?
- What Good Life Goal actions relate to our business operations and sustainability strategy?
- What actions are most relevant to the day-to-day lives of our employees?

e.g. If you have a cafeteria, you could create a campaign with the Good Life Goal actions to promote more sustainable choices.

How can you leverage the Good Life Goals to bring value to your business? Start by inviting key decision makers for a 2-3 hour working session. The objective of this session is to help you identify which Good Life Goal actions you should help your customers or employees take.

Following a Good Life Goals hack, you will have a team of people ready to drive sustainable behaviour change and a clear plan of how you can activate your priority audiences.

Generate ideas for amplifying or activating these actions for your customers, employees, or partners.

Questions to answer:

- Are there any easy wins, such as employee offers (e.g. a cycle scheme) or a certification we can apply for to make it easier for people to know the actions we have taken?
- What Good Life Goal actions do we already facilitate for our customers or employees that could easily be amplified?
- Do we have a unique capability to make the Good Life Goal actions easier, more accessible or more impactful for people?

e.g. You may find that your biggest impact would be helping customers reduce the amount of water they need to use when using your product. So, you could brainstorm ideas for new products or for updating an existing one that means your customers use less water.

Create an action plan to map out next steps, resources required and key stakeholder buy-in.

Questions to answer:

- Who do we need help from to make this happen? Do we need external support?
- Which ones are easy to do and which are priorities?
- What is our timeline?

e.g. Draft a project plan for the most impactful ideas.
